Artists Known Here Exhibit in Pasadena

Members of the Pasadena art colony, with the co-operation of 1924 Jubilee Committee, are just now putting on an exhibition of paintings and sculpture which is said to be the best and largest ever held in that section. Among the exhibitors are a number of artists well known in Carmel.

A picture which everyone enjoys is Elizabeth Strong's "Canton To Ti," a portrait of a dear little Pekingese. Miss Strong, famous for her animal pictures, is also exhibiting a small canvas showing French cart horses, which is, though the smallest painting shown, one of the best in the whole collection. She is also showing a wonderful portrait of a Russian wolf hound and a gripping landscape, showing the Carmel coast.

Ada Belle Champlin's "An Arroyo Cliff" is one of her smaller canvases. A road leads down into the Arroyo past a cliff, taking one on toward blue mountains. It is warm and rich in color and typical of the Arroyo landscape.

Guy Rose's "The Sea" is a picture of great beauty. It is one of Mr. Rose's best pictures, fine in color, beautiful in drawing. It may not have the power and strength and complicity of the pictures of some of our other marine painters, but it is expressive of a gentler mood of the sea.

Jean Mannheim reveals a lot of himself in his pictures. In "The Last Days," a sandy waste of desert leads to blue mountains touched with the last rays of the sun. It is a picture full of feeling of the desert, full of its beauty, its quietude, its allurement. There are no flowers of the desert to break its sandy waste as in so many of our desert pictures. It is a splendid picture, broadly painted and simple and beautiful in color. In direct contrast are Mr. Mannheim's other pictures, "The Passing Ship," a wonderful portrait of a girl seated and looking out to sea, and a beautiful marine, "The Lashing Waves."

"My Studio Garden," by F. Carl Smith, is gay with color, perhaps not as fine a picture as his "Selling Fish, Holland," but more interesting in a California exhibition.

Baseball Teams to Be Reorganized

With tomorrow's games ends the first season of the 1924 schedule in the Abalone league. The Reds, captained by Harrison Godwin, have copped the pennant, regardless of the outcome of tomorrow's games. The Blues are in second place, the Pioneers third, and Don Hale's Wood Rats in the basement.

Last Sunday's scores were: Reds 9, Pioneers 8, Blues 17, Wood Rats 16.

It is understood that a new series of games is shortly to be inaugurated. The players of the four present teams will be shifted about by trades and sales, and a loving cup will be awarded to the winning team.

Carmel Boasts of America's Best Equipped Studio Theater

The magazine section of the San Francisco Bulletin of March 29 carried [illegible] Daisy F. Bostick, on The Theatre of the Golden Bough.

The Pine Cone has permission to reprint the following excerpts:

By Daisy F. Bostick

"In Carmel-by-the-Sea, on Ocean avenue, there is a group of little shops that might well be transferred to an artist's canvas and labeled, 'A Bit of Old Europe.'

"They have curving, graceful roofs, some with mottled colors, some thatched, some reflecting copper tints when the sun filters through the pine trees. There are hooded doorways, unexpected glimpses of little turrets, projecting nooks in walls, and floors at irregular heights.

"Over the sidewalk marking the entrance to the stone pathway between two of these shops, and projecting from a tree, is an old wrought-iron sign representing a graceful bough, its leaves worked out in delicate traceries and its main branch following the double curve of the line of beauty.

"It was the oldest and most beautiful of the signs in Lucerns, Switzerland, and was brought to Carmel with great expense and difficulty, and marks the entrance to the new Theatre of the Golden Bough, which also has the distinction of being unique in the country.

"The legend of the Golden Bough was so widespread among the ancient of every clime that it may well be regarded as one of the basic myths of the human race.

"It has to do with the wanderings of Aeneas after the fall of Troy, who, when bidden by the Sibyl to seek his father, Anchises, in the Elysian fields, was advised that the only possible passport to those dim regions was a golden bough from a certain sacred grove, most difficult of approach.

"Many of our classic myths are built around this thought and through them runs a common thread—that the golden spray or branch was a key to the world of imagination or fantasy. Hence the aptness of the name for an institution which from its inception will join in the growing protest against false realism in the theatre.

"Carmel's new Theatre of the Golden Bough is significant of many things in the present-day development of the drama and other of the creative arts.

"It is more than a building; it is an embodiment of the highest type of mass-thought in the correlation of the arts, and it makes of Edward Gerhard Kuster, its founder, builder, architect, an outstanding figure in the dramatic history of the west, if not in all America. Following the inspiration of Gordon Craig, Percy Mackeye, Sheldon Cheney and other apostles of the modern trend, Kuster is erecting a building beautiful in treatment and consecrated to 'the intelligent production of significant plays adapted for a mature-minded, adult audience.'

"Several of Carmel's talented artists and scientists are working out special features. Mrs. Ruth Kuster should be given much credit for her taste and originality in the whole building scheme.

"The University of California has authorized its summer session in scenario writing, short story writing and related subjects to be held in Carmel at the 'Theater of the Golden Bough.' These sessions will be held during mid-summer. On June 6, Maurice Browne will open the theatre with the premiere of his own tragedy, 'The Mother of Gregory,' and will follow it with a nine weeks' school of the drama."

The Golden Bough

By Clinton Scollard

Of old the sacred sibyl said
To him who would, with patient brow,
The fabled realms of Faery tread,
"You first must find the Golden Bough.

"You first must find and pluck a spray
From off the fair Enchanted Tree
Ere you may thread the far dim way
Into the Land of Fantasy.

"The Golden Bough will open the gate
Wherein Imagination dwells;
Will show the face of Time and Fate,
The fountain-head whence wonder wells."

Though life is brief, the years are long;
Our share is what the gods allow,
But still, upon our lips a song,
We seek to find the Golden Bough.

Seven More and He Will Be a Voter

John Bartlett was the host at a most enjoyable dancing party at the home of Mrs. Nugent on Monte Verde street last Friday night, it being the occasion of the young man's fourteenth birthday.

Among those present were Helen Turner, Helen Ward, Wilma Bassett, Vere Basham, Carol Jones, Beatrice Birch, Mildred Chappell, Tiney Pearson, Carmelita Pepper, Billy Judson, Glenn Leidig, Martin Leidig, Fred Ammerman, Herbert McGuckin, Edmond McGuckin, Roland Rapier, Bob Riggs, Wesley Dickerson, Ross Burton and George Young.

Electric Cooking Rates Are Down

A reduction in the electric cooking rates of Coast Valleys Gas and Electric Company has been approved by the California Railroad Commission to take effect on April 7. When this company's electric rates were revised by the Railroad Commission on December 1, 1923, a rate of 4c per kilowatt hour for the first 150 kilowatt hours used for cooking and heating purposes was established. This rate is in line with other cooking and heating rates in the state, but was a slight increase over the rates heretofore paid by cooking and heating customers on Coast Valleys system. It resulted in some complaint from these customers and at the suggestion of the Railroad Commission, Coast Valleys has voluntarily agreed to reduce this rate from 4c to 3½c per kilowatt hour, which will make the cooking and heating rate less than the old schedule which was in effect prior to last December.

A Splendid Institution

President Edward D. Libbey of the Toledo (Ohio) Museum of Art has announced to the trustees his gift of $850,000 for the purpose of constructing an addition to the present museum building which will more than double its size. The new structure will provide 14 additional galleries, together with two large auditoriums, a Gothic gallery, a free art reference library to house 15,000 books, together with adequate class rooms for the Museum School of Design to accommodate 1000 students, new administrative offices, printing and photographing plants, lunch room and workshops.

"Belinda" Scores Popular Success

By Eunice Gray

March winds, storm clouds, hills drenched with rain, new grass, tree buds, blossoms—then came April—and Belinda!

From the first note of the orchestra, with its delightful selection of numbers, to the rail of the new curtains, a section of rain clouds and purple mists with a flirt of golden poppies in their lining, Friday and Saturday nights' entertainment in Arts and Crafts Hall was in the nature of a spring festival.

You felt it in the audience, in the stage picture and in the real flowers in the stage garden, but mostly you felt it in the light spirit of the play, the give and take, the quick turn of phrase and gentle banter. It was the spring of green turf and violets, vagrant thoughts, April loves and indecisions. Again have Carmel players proved themselves capable of "putting over" a real play. Again has a Carmel director proved himself coach, stage manager, costume and scenic artist all in one.

"Belinda" is a society play by A. A. Milnes, an English writer of many clever comedies. It requires more technique and restraint than the average comedy and far more than one without stage experience would imagine. The story must go lightly, tossed like a ball from one person to another, and never be allowed to drop.

Arthur Cyril and his company maintained this technique throughout the play and the audience and the Arts and Crafts Society expressed their appreciation by frequent and generous applause.

The stage framed the play better than ever before. The enchanting color scheme of orchid, violet and green, the deep wood tones in the Italian furniture, and the high lights in the women's costumes led one on in imagination quite naturally through those intriguing French doors into the garden. We knew so well that it was an English garden with hedges, and soft grass, and—yes—there must have been a moon and a nightingale.

The title role was played by Miss Marian Daniels, who, out of her larger stage experience, held the action with necessary firmness and thus gave greater freedom to the other members of the cast.

The scenes between Belinda and her long lost and still undiscovered husband, John Tremayne, taken by Arthur Cyril, were easily the best played, but in no way detracted from the very definite character work of Helen Judson, Belinda's daughter; Eva Bickle, her maid, and Jack Flanner and Tom Bickle as her two suitors, Mr. Devenish and Mr. Baxter.

We took away with us happy memories of a real flower garden and real music between acts, Marian Daniels' lovely facial expressions, Helen Judson's fresh, full voice, and lovely line in standing, Jack Flanner's profile and Tom Bickle's bowler hat—he should be more light headed with hair like Betty's right in his family—and now we know just what a charming and considerate gentleman Arthur Cyril will be in middle age. May he stay with us till it comes.

And if memory were not enough to keep the picture, it is safe, for it was all caught and registered in a little box held in the hands of that kindly genius, James Worthington.

Howard Wilson and Paul Shoup of Los Altos, both Stanford students, spent their spring vacation in Carmel in "Wee Gables." Mr. Wilson had as his guests for the week end Mrs. Davis and her two daughters. Mrs. Davis is the mother of Gordan Davis, and was especially interested in the production of "Belinda," which was given a few seasons ago at Stanford University under her son's direction; Arthur Cyril playing John Tremayne on very short notice.

OZONE ON ZONING PLAN

Candidates of Ability Present Tnemselves

By MAUDE ISABEL HOGLE

Carmel is beginning to see light ahead. Two years ago we elected a "No Improvement Board." This in spite of the fact that the ticket on which they were elected stated that they would stand for minimum taxes, "both by keeping assessed valuations low, and by holding the tax rate to the legal limit;" that they would "use the money so supplied for legitimate betterments and expenses, administered economically, carefully; and to regard special assessments and bond issues as matters of serious import and careful consideration."

They further promised "to work for good roads—gravel roads where possible;" "to plan now for Carmel's future growth;" "to advance the legiti[illegible] dignified and steady methods;" "to build up Carmel into a town of distinction and character, known throughout the country for its intelligence and personality."

After they were elected they became a "no improvment board" and the people of Carmel formed a citizens' committee to remind them of their promises and to assist in the keeping of these promises.

Five of the eight men who are candidates for election to the office of city trustee on April 14 were members of that committee. They did good work on that committee and they will do good work as trustees. The three remaining candidates co-operated well with the work of that citizens' committee. They also will do good work on the Board of Trustees if elected.

Carmel is to be congratulated upon its candidates; it is hard to see how the election can go badly so far as the election of trustees is concerned. Two years ago it is probable we could not have elected a single one of these men to office. Why?

Because they were business men, members of groups of business men who were interested in the sane and prosperous development of Carmel. Today these eight men are very much agreed in the main questions which affect the well-being and prosperity of Carmel. They are divided at present on one point alone. The Zoning Ordinance. And at that they are not far apart. For all believe in reconstructing the ordinance, only some wish to defeat the present ordinance and begin with a good one, and some prefer to hammer a crooked nail straight and trust that it may hold as well as a new one.

Let us take what comfort we can in the situation.

Some say the Zoning Ordinance, even if passed, will never be enforced.

Some say it really isn't much worse than the License Ordinance, which is admittedly badly drawn.

Some say it isn't legal and will not hold.

Some say that every so often we have a nightmare with a merry-go-round in it and hot-dog stands decorating the beach and that the Zoning Ordinance has nothing to do with such visions.

In the coming election chose your man and elect him, but don't elect him to kill the Zoning Ordinance, do that yourself while you have the chance, and elect a man who will help to construct the proper protection for Carmel without interfering with our own legitimate use of our property without destroying the marketable value of that property. Three hundred lots in Carmel are affected by the Zoning Ordinance. Single ownership of these lots has nothing to do with the question. Stop thinking of hot-dog stands and merry-go-rounds and glass factories long enough to see what the Zoning Ordinance will do to make difficult the improvement or the sale of such properties in Carmel.

Even zoning experts admit the impossibility of properly amending Ordinance 55. Have a heart! Don't leave it all to your new board; they will have plenty of amending to do when the license ordinance begins to get in its claws. But perhaps that isn't going to be enforced either! I mean perhaps it wasn't intended to be enforced except when necessary. Oh dear! That is worse yet! But, anyway, I believe that any of the eight men who are candidates for election will believe that an ordinance is made to be enforced. Don't you?

And this is just to thank each separate one of them for running, and to say that Carmel is FOR THEM, one and all, and sorry she can't elect all eight to office.

Zoning Essential Says Old-Timer

By GEORGE F. BEARDSLEY

Regarding this Zoning Ordinance. As I am gradually falling into the "oldest inhabitant" class through some fourteen years of residence in Carmel I would like to have a "chip in" on this matter. I will tackle it from another point of view—the one of self interest.

Let us for the moment cut out the altruistic, the grandoise and all other language of concealment and get down to "brass tacks." Zoning is not a new fad. I first ran across it forty years ago in far-off Australia, where, in the city of Melbourne, the districts were classified as "Residence Areas," "Business Areas" and "Noxious Trades Areas" (tanneries, chemical works, laundries, etc).

Considerable has been wri[illegible] said along the lines of preserving the natural beauty and simplicity of the town, etc., also the advantage of having "a most modern, artistic and dignified hotel on the beach that will conform gracefully to the natural contour of the dunes, etc." It is all the camouflage of self interest.

Personally my self interest lies in preserving as much as possible the natural beauty of the town site that first attracted me here—its trees, its sand dunes, its beach and a lot that is unnamable and indefinable. I do not want any "added grace" to any of them; they are all right as they are.

I fully recognize that increase of population (another term for world crowding) makes for change. This change is constantly referred to as "advance," "forward movement," "the march of progress," etc. There are many of us who have marched with progress in the past until our feet are tired and a restful spot much desired. Hence Carmel.

Possibly a mistake was made in splitting certain blocks instead of adhering to street boundaries for the zones. This touches the self interest of the few living in the blocks so split. They will, therefore, ignore my interest in the zoning which is general for their own in anti-zoning which concerns them as individuals.

The twenty-five foot lot conflict with the zoning may be dismissed with the statement that there are but two of these owned as single lots, the rest are in groups of two or more.

Does any one suppose that any board of trustees is going to meddle with the 260 (?) wedge-shaped or irregular-shaped lots that are situate for the most part on curved streets, that have forty or more feet front and thirty-five foot backs, simply because they are of a little less area than those forty feet wide all the way through? The shape and area of these lots were settled before ever the town was incorporated. The silliness of the contention is its own answer.

As for the matter of weaving, gardening, artists, taking roomers or boarders in private houses, etc., these have been answered fully in the columns of this paper. The zoning ordinance does not apply.

The self interest of the store keepers lies in favor of the zoning which brings all business to a common center and prevents the setting up of little shops in varions places about the city.

The interest of the curio shops, antique shops, tobacco dealers, picture card sellers, stationery shops and makers of handicraft articles is certainly for the zoning, for all modern hotels have a shop within the hotel for the sale of such articles. A large hotel on the beach with such an attachment will draw from the present establishment.

The interest of those engaged in transportation is naturally against the zoning. The more hotels, resorts, boarding houses and places of entertainment the more passengers, suit cases and trunks. In the home builder with his own car they have but little interest. On the contrary, the interest of the public garages is in the man with the machine and his repair work, gas and oil.

Of the real estate people, whose occupation is collecting rentals for absent owners or the selling of properties, in reality a creating of differences in value either for commission or direct profit, their self interest is against the zoning. It prevents, to a certain extent, the free bargaining and selling of property for any and all purposes whatsoever. The interest of those who desire to sell is seldom in the future use to which the property is to be put, while it is a matter of much concern to adjoining home-owners. The seller maintains that his right of disposal of what is his concerns no one and that the desires of others is so much interference.

The main point of opposition to the zoning appears to be the self interest of owners of beach property in disposing of the same at advanced prices for hotel purposes. If the zoning ordinance is confirmed and the beach front remains a residence area, then they will get residence area prices for forty-foot lots and be some time in disposing of them. If the ordinance is not confirmed then they get the advanced price for the large area as a whole and an immediate sale, if rumor is true.

The beauty and graudeur of a dignified beach hotel and all of the rest of the clap-trap is rubbish. The sale of the property at a good figure is the underlying thought. The cigar stand in the hotel which will sell anything will be the first break. The excrescences which will get as near the beach as possible will follow. Time is the element in this once the residence line is broken. After the sale is accomplished the former owners, directly or after a time, will move away, the city be left with a resort beach and the dignity or the lack of it a matter of small concern to them.

There is no getaway from this. It has been repeated time and time again on the Atlantic coast. A seaside farm, sale of a small piece or two as a favor or from necessity, cutting up, sale of lots to those seeking a quiet, homey spot; growth, railway connection, boarding house, hotel, beach hotels, swarms of people to the new point of interest, small shops of all sorts and amusement concessions, homey village gone, old homes given up for all sorts of uses and a resort town in full swung.

Yes, some make money and call it progress, but the home lovers are wanderers again, searching for another spot of beauty and quiet and within their means. In time the whole thing is repeated again somewhere else. Santa Cruz is an example on this coast and only lately Pacific Grove had to fight against a wide open Sunday town.

Where do our working population stand in regard to this? Say the building fraternity: "Look at the work the construction of a large hotel will bring." Yes, that is so. But it is a hundred to one that an outside architect will draw the plans. It is ten to one that an outside contractor will bid for the large work and get it. It is quite certain that, as the present residents are fully occupied, outside men will be brought in. When the job is done, many will stay here making competition for work the keener. The less efficient will be crowded out by the more efficient, whether they have homes here or not; they can hunt work elsewhere. You have fought this in a small way before. It depends upon your vote whether you fight it again in a large way or not.

Well, as you see, we all have our self interest in these matters. It is always the other fellow that is concealing his under an array of fair words and high-sounding phrases to convince you of something he does not altogether mean. It is, therefore, up to us all as individuals to balance things up, decide what is best for US and go to it.

Carmel Should Profit by Mistakes of Others

By LINN WHITE
Chief Engineer South Park Commissioners, Chicago.

Having recently made a brief stay (I wish it might have been longer) in your beautiful little city, I cannot refrain from expressing myself on a matter which I heard discussed and which I believe is important to your people. I refer to the proposition to build a large hotel on your unexcelled water front. I am convinced that would be a grave mistake. The distinctive charm of Carmel is that it is a city of homes. It is non-commercial and natural. Let it remain so. Now, your own people, those who have made Carmel what it is, enjoy the unrestricted views and use of the sea shore. If hotels must be built let them be in keeping with the quiet charm of the place and not in the most prominent positions on the shore.

A comparison between the possible situation in Carmel and the actual situation in Chicago may seem rather strained, but to my mind it is very apt. Years ago, when Chicago was only a town, a railroad was permitted to build for several miles along the shores of Lake Michigan—in fact the road was made particularly welcome, as it seemed to take off the growing, struggling town the expense of protecting the water front from the encroachment of the lake storms. The scheme seemed to work out well until in years after the full-grown city of Chicago woke to a realization of the fact that her people were shut off from access to the lake, and that one of the greatest assets of the city had been bartered away for a mess of pottage. Now Chicago is spending many millions to correct that mistake by building a new shore line out beyond the lines of the railroad. My connection with this enterprise as engineer leads me to think the situations in Carmel and in Chicago are not so unlike.

A SIGN OF PROGRESS

The controversy at present going on in this city as to whether or not we should adopt a zoning ordinance is a sign of progress.

Aside entirely from the merits of the case, the controversy and the referendum invoked shows a commendable interest in the welfare of our city.

It may be true that selfish considerations on both sides actuate a measure of the intense interest that has been aroused, but on the whole the discussion is being waged with the good of the community as a whole as the basis.

[illegible] the case we can withstand with equanimity the jibes of the metropolitan press.

THE MEANING OF A TREE

To some people a tree is just a tree, a stick of wood carrying foliage. If it is slightly in the way, they remorselessly cut it down, as if it had no value other than firewood.

To others a tree is a spot of refreshment in the heats of summer, a touch of beauty out of the hands of God in the towns that man has made. Many of the older trees are associated with people now gone who planted them years ago, and left this noble monument to their love for their home towns. The older places have famous trees that go back into early history, like the Washington elm recently removed in Cambridge, Mass., which dated back to days when this country consisted only of a few scattered colonies.

The trees of Carmel and vicinity are one of this community's most valuable possessions. They transform the scenes of daily life into homey neighborhoods, and give the touch of affection to streets that otherwise might seem prosaic. Our people should watch carefully over these trees, and see that they get the best protection that can be given against the insect enemies that raise so much havoc.

Next week is "Be Kind to Animals Week." Society first said that needless suffering of animals should be prevented, Society now says that children must not be permitted to cause pain because of the effect on the children themselves.

Simplicity and Reality The Dominating Notes

Every afternoon during the present week group after group of picture lovers have crowded into the Hagemeyer studio to enjoy the paintings of N. A. Knopf.

A critic, a man who knows pictures, writes as follows for the Pine Cone concerning the exhibition:

"A large part of the pictures on show are recent works from the vicinity of Carmel, but Colorado and the Grand Canyon are also represented a very breezy beach scene from the Atlantic coast.

"Even a cursory examination of the pictures reveals the beauty of her painting which is noteworthy for strength of outline, vividness of color and excellence and sureness of brush work.

"Eliminating the unessential, Miss Knopf gives to her paintings a great expressive force and the beauty of reality is felt all the more strongly by this simplicity. She has realized the essential note of California landscape, which is lyrical. This lyrical quality is shown to advantage in the canvas, "California [illegible] in January. Decorative, full of rhythm and striking a high lyrical note, it contracts with the strength and solidity of "Pacific Ledges." One feels air around and through her trees and air over the solidity of her rocks which invigorates as the out-of-doors. Miss Knopf has truly struck the elemental and the worth while."

The National Convention of the Y. W. C. A. will be held the last of this month in New York City. An excellent exhibit showing Asilomar and something of the Monterey peninsula has been forwarded to New York for the convention. The scope of the work of Asilomar will be presented to the Convention by some member of the committee for the executive secretary. The Asilomar song illustrated by characteristic views will be sung also at the convention.

City Election News

George F. Beardsley, member of Carmel's first board of trustees, presents an illuminating article on zoning in this issue.

Charles O. Goold's statement of his position on various municipal matters, published in last week's Pine Cone, was well received in all quarters.

The Monterey paper has published several articles by Mrs. Lotta M. Shipley in opposition to the zoning ordinance.

Unless there is a write-in campaign, which is not at all likely, City Clerk Saidee Van Brower and City Treasurer L. S. Slevin will have no opposition to succeed themselves.

The commissionerships to be filled by the three trustees to be elected are: Fire and Police, Health and Safety, and Streets and Highways.

A neighborhood meeting in the interest of the adoption of the zoning ordinance was held at the home of [illegible] idence Thursday evening.

Humane Society Membership Drive and Card Party

The Be Kind to Animals Week, beginning June 6, is the time set for winding up the membership drive of the Humane Society, in connection with a children's poster exhibit and literature covering the state-wide activities of the society, to be held in the Dummage store, Ocean avenue near Dolores street.

The committee will be on hand to take your dollar a year or any more you feel you can give for the coming season's work.

Following the drive the society will give a card party April 25, at Pine Inn, in the evening. There will be tables for bridge, five hundred and mah jongg, with a worth while prize for each table. Seats will be 50 cents. Light refreshments will be served.

Some of the ladies in charge of the affair are Mrs. John B. Jordan, Mrs. C. H. Yates, Mrs. Mellie Brewer, Mrs. Vivian Dingley, Mrs. Lena Brake, Miss Alice McChesney, Mrs. M. L. Hamlin, Dr. Amelia L. Gates, Miss Eunice T. Gray and several others who are prominent in the work.

It will be a fine party and besides, this is for a good cause. It is for a cause we should all help. In the times of Zoroaster, the ancient sage, probably 900 B. C., in the northwest part of Persia, the book Avesta, which was the holy book and contained the laws of the times, many chapters were devoted to the laws for the protection of animals, especially for the dog, and there was a severe penalty for any one breaking these laws. The old prophet Zarathuahtra was the first man we know of to preach the doctrine of kindness to animals—just the things we are asked to concentrate on the week of April 6—which has been set aside here in America for the "Be Kind to Animals Week."

Remember the drive for membership the week of April 7. Remember the card party April 25th.

Concert at the Grove

The Pacific Grove Musical Society is putting on another of its excellent programs in the Grove grammar school next Tuesday evening.

Those who attended the last concert here will recall the pleasure and thrill they got out of every number on the long and difficult program, and will not fail to take in the coming affair.

City Zoning Catechism

Questions asked by citizens regarding the zoning ordinance are here answered by the City Planning Commission and the City Attorney.

Question—It is true that chickens and eggs or cut flowers can not be sold in the residence area, or that a notice indicating the same may not be posted within the property?

Answer—For the last time—no, it is not true. These are avocations, so to speak, and not businesses. Only business not now maintained are prohibited in the residential zone.

Question—Will not this ordinance make a lot of law suits and court proceedings at the cost of Carmel's taxpayers?

Answer—It will not. This ordinance will be in the same situation as any other ordinance, or any legislation passed by any governing body; it may be attacked in the courts. That is the privilege of any citizen with any ordinance, but is not and never has been a good argument against passing ordinances necessary to the public welfare.

Question—Did not the Board of Trustees arbitrarily pass the ordinance over a majority petition or protest?

Answer—It did not. It was not a majority petition, and at the time it was signed, the signers had never seen the ordinance and could not know its terms, for it had not then been published. And the trustees passed the ordinance with the full intention of a referendum, saying so as they cast their votes.

Question—Are their any decisions in the California courts that would prove the Carmel zoning ordinance void in whole or in part?

Answer—There are not. The principal of zoning has been upheld time after time. Zoning is not unconstitutional. Some zoning ordinances have been declared void in minor details, just as have ordinances dealing with other matters. The Los Angeles decisions do not affect the Carmel ordinance, as the Los Angeles was not followed in drawing up the Carmel ordince.

Question—Can the trustees prevent concessions on the beach?

Answer—On part of the beach, yes. But there is private property in Block C 2, right down in the beach sands, that could be sold or leased to concessions, and would be disastrous unless prevented by the endorsement of the zoning ordinance.

SUSAN PORTER, Secretary.
HELEN W. PARKES

I am of the opinion that the foregoing replies are a proper interpretation of the zoning ordinance.
ARGYLL CAMPBELL, City Attorney.

Humane Week Begins Tomorrow

Tomorrow is the first day in the week set apart by the National Humane Society for the special observance of humaneness.

How Is It to Be Observed Nationally?

By a campaign of education about humane law, criminal law and the prison system, the death penalty and corporal punishment, prevention of cruelty to animals, protection of wild animals as well as domestic, blood sports and vivisection. By programs in churches and schools to illustrate and teach kindness. By a poster contest, the posters to teach humaneness. By a display of these posters, and of literature published by the society and by pet animal shows.

How Is It to Be Observed in Carmel?

On Sunday, by sermons on the humane idea.

On Tuesday by a talk to students of Sunset school on real meaning of humane work.

On every day in the week by a display of posters made by National Child Welfare League and by posters by Carmel children and with literature and pamphlets published by the Humanitarian League of London, the American Humane Society and others.

By a table in the library with books illustrating animal life and child wel-

By the maintenance of headquarters in an uptown store (through courtesy of Mrs. Dummage) where information will given, literature displayed and membership received.

How May You Observe Humane Week?

Inform yourself on state laws in regard to animal rights, anti-cruelty and game protection, transportation of live stock and child labor.

Read the books and pamphlets at headquarters, especially Salb on "The Case Against Corporal Punishment" and "Animal Rights" and J. Howard Moore (biologist) on "The Universal Heirship." Inform yourself as to entire scope of work of local humane society.

Visit the Animal Shelter in Monterey. Study the posters. Join the Monterey County Humane Society as a contributing or active member and remember "That best portion of a good man's life, His little, nameless, unremembered acts of kindness and of love."

Dr. Uncle Sam Will Cure Your Cold

Congressman Arthur M. Free of this district informs the Pine Cone of the new treatment for colds, whooping-cough, and bronchitis discovered by the chemical warfare division of the U. S. Army. The treatment simply consists of liberating a certain amount of chlorine gas in a closed room properly mixed with air. The process destroys the germs, but does not irritate the mucous membrane.

Thousands of people about Washington have been cured. It usually takes a treatment of about one hour to cure a cold, while whooping-cough is absolutely cured in one treatment. The chemical warfare division is asking for a patent on the apparatus used, and then expects to liberate it generally, without charge, for the relief of people who might need the treatments.

"The Crucifixion" on Good Friday

On the afternoon of Good Friday, April 18, the Choral Society of Carmel, assisted by a picked group of peninsula musicians, will give John Stainer's oratorio, "The Crucifixion." This is one of the most beautiful and dramatic in all the passion music and has been sung by the famous singers and musical societies all over the world.

The local society is fortunate in having Mrs. Roberta Arment Leitch as soloist. Calvin H. Luther and J. S. Harkins will sing the tenor solos and Rev. George M. Dorwart the bass solos.

A very successful rehearsal was held last Tuesday evening with Mrs. William T. Smith at the piano and Fenton P. Foster, the attentive and skillful director.

There will be four more rehearsals. It is hoped that all singers who wish to benefit by this training and to contribute their talent also toward the success of the production will attend next Tuesday's rehearsal at Arts and Crafts ball.

O'Haras Celebrate Golden Wedding

The George F. Carroll home at Pebble Beach was the gathering place of a large number of friends and relatives of Mr. and Mrs. James O'Hara, on Thursday evening of last week, when they celebrated their golden wedding anniversary. Among those present were:

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. James, Mr. and Mrs. Alcil Gard, Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. Figuero, Mr. and Mrs. W. Nielsen and son, Mr. and Mrs. J. West, Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Torres, Mr. and Mrs. George F. Carroll and daughter, and Mrs. M. McGuken and two sons.

Many gifts, telegrams and letters came to the grand old couple on their golden day.

Notable Artist Visits Friends in Carmel

An interesting visitor to Carmel over the week-end was Dorothea Johnston of San Francisco and Berkeley. Miss Johnstone is well-known as a diseuse, having made appearances before high school audiences and the well known women's clubs throughout California. She has also appeared with the Wheeler Hall Players of the University of California this spring, having played the the Lion in Shaw's "Androcles and the Lion."

Several years ago Miss Johnston appeared with the Armfield Players in Shakespearian roles in New York.

Miss Johnston came down to see Edward G. Kuster and the Theater ofthe Golden Bough. She will give a program at Asilomar on April 26, following which she will spend a month in Carmel.

While here Miss Johnston was with her friends, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Bremer.
